The title of the collection, Heure Bleue, is a French term that refers to the twilight hours, when the sky is neither light nor dark. This liminal space is often associated with a sense of nostalgia and longing, and it is the perfect setting for Gabbert's poems, which explore the ways in which we remember and forget the past.

One of the most striking things about Gabbert's poems is their use of language. She has a gift for finding the perfect word or phrase to express a complex emotion or idea. Her poems are full of beautiful and evocative imagery, and they often linger in the reader's mind long after they have been read.

Heure Bleue is a powerful and moving collection of poems that will resonate with readers of all ages. Gabbert's insights into the human condition are both profound and compassionate, and her poems offer a unique perspective on the nature of time, memory, and loss.
